Consultation process will start in early 2025

Diversity and inclusion at the workplace

- In its Communication 'Non-discrimination and equal opportunities: a renewed commitment' adopted on 2 July 2008, the Commission recognised that legislation is more effective when it goes hand in hand with progressive and innovative strategies implemented by employers to manage an increasingly diverse workforce.
- Diversity policies can help organisations to successfully attract the best talents and ensure they can fully use their abilities to maximise their contribution to the company.
- Therefore, the Commission has been working closely with employers for a long time, both private and public, to foster diversity in the workplace more broadly. Since 2010, the Commission has been funding an EU-level platform of Diversity Charters, which now consists of 27 Diversity Charters.

Future actions

Diversity and inclusion in the workplace

- The Commission has tendered a study:
 - to investigate the benefits and potential business case for private and public organisations to pursue diversity and inclusion policies
 - to investigate the impact of signing a Diversity Charter in developing diversity and inclusion policies in an organisation

Age

- The European Union has since 2000 a directive banning – among others – discrimination on the basis of age in employment and occupation

Future actions

- Study on discrimination on the grounds of age in the EU (to be finalized in Q3 2025) that will help shape the scope of the future Commission engagement in age equality.
